

Title : ORCHARD BOULEVARD

Composer : Dick Lee

Lyricist : Dick Lee

The sudden storm evokes a memory
One rainy night, a man stands under a tree
He's cursing, swearing, for not staying in
Then she appears from nowhere, soaked to the skin

There are no taxis in sight
It looks as if they will be there half the night
Then, lightning lights up the sky
She runs across to him, and stops, then she smiles

Chorus:

Somewhere on Orchard Boulevard
Someone stole his heart
Sometime ago
Somewhere on Orchard Boulevard
Someone needs to find the love
That started from there

The night is slowly turning into day
And all the thunder clouds have rained away
They sit along the curb and talk like friends
Until one silent moment, he takes her hand

And there in the light of the dawn
Two people know a special love is born
Then, as a cab comes along
They kiss, she says a soft goodbye, then she's gone

Chorus:

Somewhere on Orchard Boulevard
Someone stole his heart
Sometime ago
Somewhere on Orchard Boulevard
Someone needs to find the love
That started from there

Repeat Chorus
