

Title : The Goat That Haunted Me

Composer : Martin Tang

Lyricist : Leon Lim

Here's a little dream I heard
One sunny day as I was out walking
Look, there is that silly bird
And behind, a goat who lived his life stalking
Like I've said, the other side
I therefore believe in balance
But I don't know why I took this ride
And what I saw I swore to silence

So like I said, I now shall tell
Of what I've heard not what I've seen
Outside hell's where I heard heaven's bells
They were ringing so joyously
They were ringing so silently
For a moment I could hardly tell
Was I scared or was I happy?
Really wishing the bells were rung for me

Well I got a little scared
Outside the gates I had to scream
But I couldn't even though I tried
The only thing I could do was hear
In the heat, I was close to being fried
Then came a twinkling to my ear
Hark! The herald devil sings!!
There it was a beautiful song of sin
Promising so many special things
He invited me to come in

And that is when I heard heaven's bells
They were ringing so joyously
They were ringing so silently
For a moment I could hardly tell
Was I scared or was I happy?
Really hoping the bells were rung for me

It's a pity I didn't stay very long
Or I could have made another new friend
Yet it's good I did not learn that new song

Or that would have been the end

Outside hell's where I heard heaven's bells
They were ringing so silently
They were ringing triumphantly
At this moment I can hardly tell

Was it real or just a dream?
But I know now the bells they ring
But I know now the bells they ring for me
